

The charge for an average DS3 ten mile circuit has fallen 35% over the life of the price cap plan. For a DS1 circuit, the price has almost been cut in half (42%).

IV Video Dialtone Service is Competitive

37. Bell Atlantic has several Section 214 applications pending for authority to provide video dialtone service. As a competitive alternative to traditional cable television, video dialtone will largely compete with established suppliers that serve a majority of households in their customer base. Moreover, the homeowners that subscribe to video dialtone service will also be offered alternative programmers within the video dialtone framework. Finally, Direct Broadcast Satellite technology allows competitive providers the ability to reach every home and business in the Bell Atlantic region.

38. Bell Atlantic has already announced that its video dialtone service will be priced competitively as compared to cable alternatives. Given the extent of the competition, Bell Atlantic could not do otherwise. As with its competition for access service, the alternative providers will not be under price regulation.²³

IV. CONCLUSION

39. It is clear that customers of high capacity and interstate toll and corridor services have alternatives, and the resulting competition has had a real impact on Bell Atlantic's prices for these services. New Video Dialtone service will also face incumbent competition. The variety of alternative providers, combined with the ability to collocate at Bell Atlantic facilities, means an expansion in the level of competition going forward. Because these services are competitive today, and because price regulation of competitive service distorts the market to Bell Atlantic's and consumers' economic disadvantage, the artificial price cap restraints should be lifted.

I swear that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.
